The Down Factory Store

www.downfactorystore.com

Thanks to our retail and "online" customers we are one of the largest resources for goose down comforters, pillows and featherbeds. Consumers that compare our quality and prices to those of department stores, discounters, catalogs and other web sites find that we are indeed unbeatable - and we guarantee that! Know the facts of down before you buy.

FACT: Down comes from the chest of the bird to keep it insulated from the weather. Feathers (those things with quills) come from the back of the bird to keep it dry. Down can cost as much as $10.00 an ounce, feathers 10¢ an ounce. Over 90% of down manufacturers find it to their advantage to add over 30% feathers to their down. It's like buying three pounds of ground sirloin and getting two pounds of meat and one pound of fat. You have paid for meat and got fat, it's the same with their down, they both do it because it's legal. We do not contaminate our down by adding feathers to it.

KNOW THE FACTS BEFORE YOU BUY IT

FACT: Fill power, this is the amount the cubic inches filled by one ounce of down. Higher fill power means a higher quality down. You will find that as the quality of the down increases, so does the comfort & life of the item.

FACT: We use only high thread count, baffle box construction, 100% cotton covers on our down comforters & pillows. Down insulates by trapping air and holding in your body temperature, keeping you comfortable through the night. Low quality comforters are usually heavier because it takes more of an inferior down to fill a comforter. Inferior down becomes clumpy and it can't breath, resulting in your becoming over heated and uncomfortable. Our high quality down gives you the warmth and comfort without the weight.

FACT: In all likelihood you will have your comforter longer than the car you are now driving.

Quick Thinking

Local Man Saves Ronkonkoma Hunter From Giant Ecuadorean Eel

By Dan Rattiner

A hunter from Lake Ronkonkoma nearly died last Monday evening after being attacked by a giant eel in Noyac. He was walking across the frozen surface of Trout Pond right at dusk when the giant creature broke through the ice from underneath, wrapped itself around the man and tried to pull him under. It was only because of the quick thinking of a deliveryman, who had parked his van facing the pond to enjoy the view for awhile, that the hunter was saved. The hunter, John Robertson, owes his life to the deliveryman, Noah Shrek of Southampton.

"I saw he was in serious trouble," Shrek said. "It was pure instinct. I just got out of the van and ran out on the ice and saved him."

The encounter began when Robertson, who has been hunting deer on the north side of the pond, followed some deer tracks onto the pond and across it. We spoke to Robertson in his hospital bed in Southampton, where he is recovering. He suffered several broken ribs from being squeezed, third degree electric shocks to his scalp and feet and some sort of rash on his chest and stomach from green slime, which came off the eel during the encounter. The eel also bit him in the nose.

"At first I didn't know what hit me...Then I was in these coils and looking at this beast right in his eyes..."

"At first I didn't know what hit me," Robertson said. "Then I was in these coils and looking at this beast right in his eyes. He had green eyes. I wanted to get my gun, but it was nowhere near by."

Shrek was sitting in his van, facing the pond, about fifty yards away from the encounter. He was delivering sixteen full-size mannequins from a warehouse in Southampton to a clothing store in East Hampton. He had stopped on County Road 39 in Southampton at Burger King for a Junior Whopper and fries and had parked at Trout Pond to finish them off with a vanilla shake.

"It was just lucky for him I decided to take the back way through Sag Harbor," Shrek said from his home in Southampton. "I like to stop at Trout Pond at the overlook. I like Trout Pond."

Shrek said he saw exactly what happened. "There was this huge thing under the ice, it must have been thirty feet long, and it seemed to be shadowing the guy with the gun. He'd walk along and this thing would glide at the same speed, under him and just behind him so he couldn't see.

"But then the hunter stopped. He sees him.

And this thing just kept going forward a few feet and then leapt up with a terrific bang, battered its head under the ice I guess and the ice just crashed upwards like it was an eggshell. The thing was hissing and spitting and it just wrapped itself around the guy, counterclockwise, like in a spiral. The guy's gun went flying. I couldn't have that. I got out of the car and started out onto the ice, and then I thought of the mannequins. I ran back to the back of the van, opened it, and pulled one out — it was a female — and I ran out with it and threw it in the direction of this thing and yelled "HERE!" and it just leaped from the man to the mannequin in nothing flat and dragged her under. Just like that."

The hunter, dressed in a heavy camouflage jacket, fell to the ground unconscious. Shrek grabbed him under the armpits and dragged him across the ice and through the snow to his van, then lifted him up and bundled him in.

"I was scared this thing was going to come back and get him. Surely it'd be pissed when it figured out it got a mannequin. The guy was heavy. And I have these burn marks on my forearms and hands from dragging him."

As the van's engine was on and the inside was heated and warm, Shrek sat Robertson up in the passenger's seat, ran off to somebody's house and rang the bell.

"I really should have a cell phone," Shrek said.

After a minute, he was let in by a couple, and he quickly called the police and an ambulance.

"We ran back to the van," Shrek said. "At least me and the man. The wife wouldn't come. Said she was scared. We found Robertson where I left him, shivering, not from the cold but from the shock. The ambulance came and took him away. There was no sign of the eel. I know eels. This was an eel. But a giant one. Usually eels won't bother you unless you bother them, but this one was different."

Southampton Town Police examined the hole in the ice and confirmed that the ice had been broken from underneath by something. They also found some florescent green goo on the ice, which they scraped up and sent to the lab. They also put yellow crime scene tape around the pond. There will be no skating on Trout Pond until further notice.

Police say the incident reminds them of a series of events reported at length in Dan's Papers during the cold winter of 1998-9 when an eel, later identified as a thirty-two-foot long Giant Ecuadorian Eel, attacked and killed five people in the Hamptons by leaping up out of the ice and dragging them under.

Dr. Chuck McCarthy, from the Amphibian Department of Suffolk Community College, says that this could be the same eel, except that it has been hibernating for four years.

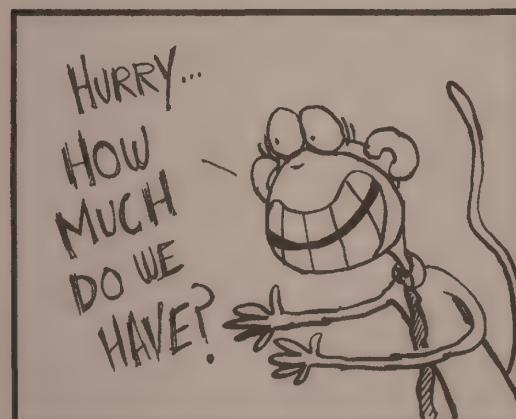

"He'd be very hungry," Dr. McCarthy said.

Other experts scoffed at the idea that an eel, especially a Giant Ecuadorian, could hibernate for four years. Down in Ecuador, they don't hibernate at all. Sgt. Frank Clark of the County Police also doubts if this could be the same one. The one four years ago was killed in a giant underwater explosion that experts had set as a trap for him at Mill Pond in Water Mill, although the remains of that Giant Ecuadorian were never found.

In any case, residents are being advised to stay away from Trout Pond, and any other pond here on the East End.

East Hamptonites Ruining Shelter Island Roads, But What To Do?

By Dan Rattiner

The dispute between Shelter Island and East Hampton is heating up again. It's about a proposed ferry service from East Hampton to Connecticut, which for the past ten years East Hampton has resisted and which Shelter Island has pressed for. The issue is that people from East Hampton, when they go to Connecticut to head up to Boston or to gamble at Foxwoods or Mohegan Sun, currently take the Cross Sound Ferry in Orient Point to get there. And to get to Orient Point, they cross peaceful, bucolic Shelter Island. Indeed, the ferry people have done surveys that show that one out of four motorists who use the service come from East Hampton. East Hampton is essentially wearing out the roads of Shelter Island.

Anyway, this dispute was discussed at a regional meeting held last week in a conference room at the Suffolk County Community College in Riverhead. About seventy people attended and they listened to speaker after speaker talk about the problem. Particularly forceful were a Shelter Island resident, Bob Drake, who is the president of Citizens for a South Fork Ferry, Stanley Mickus, who is the marketing director for the Cross Sound Ferry, and traffic consultant Hank DeCillia, and the Assistant Director of East Hampton Town, Planning Department, JoAnne Pahwul, who was there as an observer.

"East Hampton Town passed a law in 1997 banning ferry terminals in that town," Mr. DeCillia noted.

"I didn't think, and still don't think East Hampton has the power to do that," Mr. Drake said. "What if we passed a law on Shelter Island forbidding people driving across it? Could we do that?"

Mr. Mickus showed film footage of a Cablevision executive urging East Hampton to law that passed in East Hampton," Mr. Mickus said.

Since that meeting, the situation has begun to spin out of control.

"It's not going to happen," State Assemblyman Fred Thiele said the next day. "I think the Town of East Hampton has made itself abundantly clear."

At this point, as I am sure you know, it was discovered in a routine spy flight that Shelter Island has gone ahead with its plans to build a nuclear weapons plant.

"We were promised they would not do this," the Supervisor of the Town of East Hampton said. "That is why we had agreed to help Shelter Island financially during their recent drought."

The drought has caused near starvation conditions on Shelter Island. East Hampton has provided the people there with more than a thousand dollars.

The Supervisor of East Hampton was in a rage. East Hampton would commence a complete economic embargo of Shelter Island if they didn't shut down the plant immediately. And they would send fighter planes in to fire missiles at the plant.

But surveillance cameras that were set up

It was discovered in a routine spy flight that Shelter Island has gone ahead with its plans to build a nuclear weapons plant.

allow a ferry terminal for boat travel to Connecticut. He read a letter, written to The New York Times last January by Suffolk County Water Authority CEO Stephen M. Jones, urging East Hampton to accept the ferry to Connecticut.

"The State of New York, in charge of its interstate transportation, can override a local adjacent to the plant showed Shelter Islanders ripping the agreed upon seals off the doors to the plant. Technicians started bringing in bars of plutonium. Then soldiers shot out the surveillance cameras.

Sag Harbor, which is closest to Shelter Island, and which has historical familial bonds with the people of that island, pleaded for caution. And they pointed out that a recent Bruce Willis movie portrayed Shelter Islanders as bad guys.

"These are our common ancestors," the Mayor of Sag Harbor said. "Perhaps we should join with the Shelter Islanders in throwing East Hampton tourists out of our communities. We don't like all those unruly East Hampton tourists anyway."

In the end, East Hampton pulled back from its plans to take out the nuclear plant. "We have no plans to invade Shelter Island," the East Hampton Supervisor said.

But then it was learned that East Hampton was sending a fleet of Montauk fishing boats, loaded with fishermen and high-powered fishing rods, to surround Shelter Island. In fact, they would be in place before the weekend.

"Shelter Island must give up all Weapons of Mass Destruction," the East Hampton Supervisor told representatives of the five East End towns at a hastily called emergency regional meeting. By a vote of four to two,

East Hampton, Southampton, Riverhead and Southold in favor and Sag Harbor and Shelter Island opposed, the regional council passed Resolution 11214E requiring that Shelter Island give up its Weapons of Mass Destruction and allow inspectors to come to the island to confirm that fact.

"We welcome the inspectors," the Supervisor of Shelter Island said. "We have no Weapons of Mass Destruction, no nuclear bomb plant. We took them all apart and burned the pieces."

Indeed, inspectors came and where the plant had been was just a foundation of a factory, with one or two shell casings lying under a pile of wooden boxes in a corner of the basement.

"Where is the stuff that went into these shell casings?" the Supervisor of East Hampton demanded at another hastily called emergency regional council meeting.

Shelter Island submitted a 61,415-page book documenting the absence of any Weapons of Mass Destruction. But there was no mention of the shell casings.

"It is not up to us to FIND Weapons of Mass Destruction," the Supervisor of East Hampton said. "It is up to Mr. Knick-er-bocker," he said, pronouncing his name slowly, "to TURN IN his Weapons of Mass Destruction. We know he has them. He knows we know. We know he knows we know. And he knows we know he knows we know. Time is running out."

The Supervisor of East Hampton said that resolution 11214E by itself granted permission to invade Shelter Island if Shelter Island did not comply. He said he would do so whether the regional council approved of it or not. But then he sent his secretary of state to another urgent emergency regional council meeting to tell the council what he knew about Shelter Island's non compliance, even though a few East Hampton spies might be compromised and beheaded by agents of His Highness Mr. Knickerbocker in the process.

The secretary of state, a kindly man who everybody knows knows right from wrong, showed spy plane views of the nuclear plant being dismantled and moved off into a deep woods out of camera range. There were transportation vehicles. There were decontamination trucks. And over in the corner, as you could see, there was a line of white vans filled with the inspection team on its way to the site to see what was what. The plant had been moved just in time.

"The game is over," the Supervisor of East Hampton said in a speech listened to by over a thousand people.

Another vote was held in the regional council, and this time, the regional council voted that indeed Shelter Island was not in compliance with 11214E.

And that's where the matter stands today. The fleet of Montauk fishing boats with their nasty long-throw fishing rods with the nasty hooks on the end has been joined by a few rowboats from Hampton Bays with men in them who know how to curse and shake their fists. Others are joining the flotilla. Dozens are expected to die in this battle to keep the region Weapons of Mass Destruction free.

We await developments.

Chess Champ, Beaten Once By A Machine, Falters Against A Lesser Opponent

By Dan Rattiner

Garry Kasparov, who is probably the best human chess player who ever lived, was in Manhattan last week, playing a series of six games against a computer named Deep Junior at the New York Athletic Club. The games were supposed to take place so that Kasparov could avenge the first loss in his chess career, a humiliating defeat inflicted on him by the computer Deep Blue in 1997. That series of games was played at the Millenium Hotel on Broadway that year, with a live audience silently watching the contest and as many as a billion people monitoring it all over the world. Kasparov claimed foul at the end, when, after a week of games that exhausted him, he made a mistake that allowed Deep

Blue to beat him in the final game — Deep Blue didn't suffer from exhaustion — and Kasparov loudly declared that his refrigera-ner would get $300,000 and the loser $200,000, with Kasparov also getting a $500,000 appearance fee. (They'd just wheel Deep Junior in.)

As for the match itself, even though writers offered flowery prose during the match — "Kasparov's king was sent scurrying up the board, and from a defensive posture..." from the fifth and next to last game — Deep Junior was kind of a handpicked opponent,

What does a computer do with $300,000 or $200,000? That's a lot of oats.

whose software could be got off the shelf in any computer store for about fifty dollars. (Deep Blue was much more powerful and cost $10 million.)

It reminded me of what goes on in boxing

PEACE TRAIN TAKES EAST ENDERS TO WAR PROTEST

By Dan Rattiner

This Saturday morning a group of several thousand East Enders will travel to Manhattan, some aboard a Long Island Railroad "Peace Train," some by car or on the Jitney, for a demonstration against a war with Iraq. Organizers of the event say that upwards of 100,000 people are expected to attend, with people coming from Connecticut, New Jersey, Manhattan and the other four boroughs. It had been hoped that the participants, who will assemble at First Avenue and 49th Street by the United Nations, would be able to head north and west, ending up listening to speakers in Central Park, but due to the increased terrorist threat warning there will not be enough police available, so the permits have only been approved for a gathering along First Avenue.

The event is called "The World Against War" and it will be held simultaneously in cities all over the country and the world. The organizers expect as many as ten million to participate.

when an undefeated champion is dethroned. They throw him in next with a handpicked journeyman fighter with a mediocre record, so the ex-champ can sharpen his skills and regain his confidence.

Few followers of the game of chess will forget what Kasparov went through after his defeat by Deep Blue — he represented the human race, after all. He moaned and groaned and declared that humans would never again defeat a computer. Then he rallied and said he would like a re-match with Deep Blue, even though the IBM scientists who had built him had retired him from further combat. Then, in 2000, Kasparov lost the title as the best human chess player in the world in a series of games against challenger Vladimir Kramnik. Kasparov had been champion for sixteen years.

It just occurred to me — what does a computer do with $300,000 or $200,000? That's a lot of oats.

Anyway, there is little doubt that Deep Junior was a handpicked opponent. Made in Israel, he (it?) can contemplate a maximum of just two million possible moves a second, compared to the 20 million moves that, had been programmed into Deep Blue five years earlier. On the other hand, Deep Junior's designers said that what with advances in computer technology, he could think more nimbly than Deep Blue. The thought processes were more human-like. Indeed, Deep Junior had won the World Computer Championships in The Netherlands two years in a row.

As the match started, Kasparov demanded assurances that Deep Junior would have the same motherboard and software going in as he had had during training and the handlers of Deep Junior agreed. There'd be no horse shoes in the boxing gloves.

The series of six games began January 23. And even though Larry Christiansen, the American champion, said he thought Kasparov would emerge victorious, it was tough going for the veteran. Staying away from the center of the board, where the computer could play better, Kasparov attacked from the sides, but to limited effect. As Deep Junior couldn't get an advantage either, the human and the computer played three draws out of the first five games, with each opponent winning one of the other two games. For the sixth and final game, and with the score tied, people hoped that Kasparov would make some daring moves and take some chances. But they were wrong. Kasparov played himself into a superior position and, from that position, surprising everybody, offered a draw on the 23rd move. Deep Junior turned him down. But then, on the 28th move, Deep Junior offered a draw. Kasparov agreed. Final score 3 to 3. The crowd booed.

Kasparov, however, was apparently remembering what happened six years earlier with Deep Blue. They had been tied going into the final game. And then, tired, Kasparov took chances.

"I had one item on my agenda today: not to lose," he told reporters. "So that's why I wanted to be absolutely safe and decided it would be wiser to stop playing."

Deep Junior offered no comment.

In spite of this disappointing performance, Kasparov is gearing up to hopefully play for the championship this fall. He is still ranked as the #1 contender. How it works in chess is that the leading contenders, human contenders, play a series of matches to determine a suitable challenger. Then the challenger plays the champion, an event that happens every four years. Next month, Kasparov plays Federation champion (a lesser title) Ruslan Ponomarev of Ukraine to determine a challenger. At the same time, Kramnik will defend his world title against Peter Leko of Hungary, who he is expected to beat. It is also a sort of a tune up. Kramnik will then play either Kasparov or Ponomarev in the fall for the world championship.

Many people have expressed the opinion that the dominance of computers over people is spelling the end of chess as we know it. In the past, and the past goes back 1,500 years, chess masters would memorize different sequences used successfully by prior champions and then hope that their opponents hadn't. Mastery of the game of chess at this level required an almost photographic memory, together with considerable daring to try something new that, at later times, would be copied by others. This is what the American, Bobby Fischer, was so good at years ago, and which only Garry Kasparov has recently been

Fat

The Man Who Ate The Buick And Other Stories To Help You Get Thin

By Dan Rattiner

Here's another reason to lose weight. A study came out the other day that says if you are fat and you have surgery, you are more likely to have a clamp or surgical scissors left inside you than if you are thin. The reason? There is more of you. So there is more room to lose things. Other factors that carry a high risk for waking up with a surgical tool still inside are, 1. It's an emergency and in the excitement that goes on during the attempt to save your life you get something left in there, 2. the surgical team working on you has a change of shift in the middle of your surgery and, 3. they just miscount what they put in and think they took everything out when they didn't.

Of all these factors, the only one you really have any control over is keeping skinny. You really ought to pay attention to this, even though the possibility of your "retaining" a surgical device — that's the phrase they use — is rather remote. One scissors for every 50,000 operations, I think.

Frankly, I know this is a shocking thing for you to be reading about in a family newspaper such as this, but you know what? We've got an epidemic of fat going on in America now. And summer is coming. And everybody is going to be out at the beaches. This isn't going to be pretty.

Why everybody is so obsessed with food in a drive-thru and buy them all some food. What's it gonna be? A wrap with bean sprouts or a Whopper and fries? It's your choice and it's all in your face, right there along the side of the road. This is America.

Another theory I have is that when things go badly and you get stressed, you eat. It balances out the bad. If things go really bad, then you have to really, really eat to get things balanced out.

Here's another theory. When things are good, you eat. My parents, whenever I did something at school they were proud of — be in a play, win an essay contest, get an A — took me out to a luncheonette and bought me a hot fudge Sundae, or if I didn't want that, whatever else I wanted. It was my reward.

This leads me to another theory. Back then, our parents actually dictated to us what they wanted us to eat. You are not getting up from this table until you finish your spinach. Yes you can have a cookie, but just one. Today, parenting is

We've got an epidemic of fat going on... And summer is coming. And everybody is going to be out at the beaches.

America I don't know. But I've got a few theories. For one thing, we live in our cars, which increasingly are SUVs. We fill them with children, grandparents, football teams and Labrador retrievers and we happily drive them all around taking them places to drop them off and pick them up. From time to time, we have to pull into often just about throwing a bag of corn chips at a kid and telling him the Cokes are in the refrigerator. It's a different time.

The courts are not cooperating in trying to deal with obesity. Last week, a judge threw out a lawsuit filed by a corpulent young man who claimed he has been seduced and intimidated by all the fried food being offered in drive-throughs by the sides of the road. He argued that they were FORCING him to buy things that made him fat, since there were so many more high-calorie places than low-calorie places. The judge wasn't buying.

In another courtroom, this one in Queens, a judge, about to sentence an overweight mafia-type fella for operating a chop shop that dealt in stolen cars, listened to the pleas of the defense attorney that he was just too fat for prison. The judge ruled that he would postpone sentencing for six months so the man could lose thirty pounds.

"You understand you'll be right back here if you are unable to do this?" the judge admonished.

"Yes sir," the man said, hanging his head on his triple chin.

It's one of the rights of living in America, in there with the Bill of Rights or the Declaration of Independence, that you are free to eat whatever you want, or whenever you want, if you've got the bucks to afford it. Eat yourself to death if that's what you want. What is this, Nazi Germany? We judges can't intervene.

If the courts are no help in trying to save us, business and government are at least trying. Several airlines, noting the increase in corpulence, are requiring that an overweight person of great dimension buy two seats on an airplane instead of one. McDonalds did introduce a slim-burger of some sort, but frankly it didn't work out. I tried it. Did you? Tasted like tightly packed sawdust. They took it off the menu.

As for the government, the attorney general is considering a public relations campaign to the effect that eating too much fattening food is as bad for you as smoking. Certainly the statistics are there. You'll live, on average, from four to six years less if you overeat and get fat. You won't be as quick getting out of the way of SUVs, for example. Or you'll be too heavy to fit through the fire exit during a conflagration.

For some reason, as I am writing this, the story of the man who, a long time ago, ate a Buick comes to mind. This was around 1955, during the time when Charles Atlas used a rope to haul a truck a hundred yards. It was during the time people were exhausting themselves greasing up and swimming the English Channel.

The man who ate the Buick didn't do it at one sitting, of course. It took him a year. A little piece here and a little piece there. I think it was more of a political statement than a Guinness Book of World Records statement. Or maybe he just wanted the publicity. Anyway, he'd eat these little pieces and they'd be full of iron or zinc and they'd zip right through his system and come out the other side. Eventually he'd eaten the whole Buick. Didn't gain a pound.

The thing is, really, we live in America. And America operates on the free market system. Whatever's popular succeeds. Fried food tastes better than steamed food. Big Macs and Whoppers rule. And it's your choice.

There is an argument, and I think that it is a good one, that when kids are at school and we can mold their young minds, we can teach them things they might not be receptive to later on. We can teach them that reading is better than video games. We can teach them that the intellectual life is better than the disco life. Well, maybe we can't teach them that, but at least we can expose them to these things early on and see if some of them take.

About ten years ago, most of the school cafeterias in America gave up on roast beef, green beans and mashed potatoes and went over to Chicken McNuggets and fries. Bad, bad, bad. Now, some of these schools are heading the other way. Headed up by knowledgeable chefs, they are producing low calorie and nutritious meals that taste good and cost no more than McNuggets and fries. Here on the East End, the Ross School has made the transition. And the Bridgehampton School, a public school, has done it, too. Certainly, nothing can come of this but good.

Personally, I find it very hard to eat right. I know I should. Sometimes I do. Then afterwards, proud of myself for eating right, I go out and have a hot fudge sundae.

Sweet high-calorie desserts eaten after a healthy low-calorie meal resets your system to digest in a healthy way and won't add a pound, right?

Protest

Among those attending this event, which kicks off at noon in Manhattan, include actor Roy Scheider and his wife Brenda, actress Mercedes Ruhl and her husband David Geiser, architect Bill Chaleff, the Reverend Henry Faison of the First Baptist Church of Bridgehampton, playwright Joe Pintauro, Lucius Ware of the NAACP and Marjorie Day, the vice president of the Eastville Community Historical Society in Sag Harbor, also Gordian Rooke, Michael O'Neil and friends of Spalding Gray.

Everyone, whether connected to a group or not, is welcome to come to the rally in Manhattan on their own, but the leaders of several existing groups met at Peter Miller's Restaurant near Long Wharf in Sag Harbor last Friday to talk about the event. They included Kathy Engel, representing a group called Women in Black, which has held a vigil against war at Long Wharf every Friday afternoon since last August, Dan Steiger, the head of Direction Action Now and Reverend Faison of the First Baptist Church. Speaking at this meeting was a guest, Phyllis Bennes, a Middle East scholar from Washington. It was agreed to create a combined group from these other groups, to be called East Enders for Peace and Justice.

The Peace Train leaves Montauk at 6:45 a.m., East Hampton at 7:11, Bridgehampton at 7:21, Southampton at 7:25 and Westhampton Beach at 7:54. The return ticket is open ended. Use it when you wish.

Two weeks after this event, there will be a one-day exhibit at Ashawagh Hall in the Springs entitled "Artists Against War." It will take place on March 1, and is being organized by painters David Geiser and Ellen Frank, and contributing artists — everyone is welcome — are asked to bring their hangable works, less than 30"x30", to Ashawagh Hall between noon and five that day. The exhibit will take place in the evening. For more information call 907-9082 or Ellen Frank at 329-0530.

Be Mine

Childhood Sweethearts, Kissing Behind The Curtain And Richard's Pants

By Janet Berg

Valentine's Day — what's the deal? It comes every year, like the annual tax bill, and you better pay up! There's a lot of pressure with The Valentine Gift — the red satin heart, the candlelit dinner, the box of chocolates, the bouquet of flowers.

Suddenly, that day of the year rolls around, and lovers are coming out of the woodwork, all smoochy woochy. It's annoying already. What about all the lonely people out there, sending themselves anonymous cards in the mail? It's pathetic.

And what's with the little winged boy? His arrow has certainly gone astray over the years. I mean talk about your odd couples: who ever figured out Yoko Ono and John Lennon, Michael Jackson and Lisa Marie Presley, Cindy Crawford and David Copperfield, Kermit the Frog and Miss Piggy. There are all kinds of couples. As they say, it makes the world go round.

Besides, with reality TV shows, like The Bachelorette — twenty-five men and one woman — or with the Internet "match.com," who needs Cupid anymore? Ooh, it's a sad reality. But, it seems today's generation has little patience or interest in sentimentality.

I recently asked questions of a group of six-year-olds,

Q: What do most people do when out on a date?

A: "I don't know. I got better things to do."

Q: When is it okay to kiss someone?

A: "When you go behind a curtain."

Q: When is it not okay?

A: "When you have to sneeze."

Q: How do you know when a date doesn't turn out good?

A: "When something spills on the other one's clothes."

Q: Is it better to be single or married?

A: "Single, 'cause I'm single already, and I like it."

Q: How do you decide whom to marry?

A: "If you like their hairstyle."

Q: How can a stranger tell if two people are married?

A: "If they're cursin'."

Q: What do your mom and dad have in common?

A: "They're both married."

Q: How would the world be different if people didn't get married?

A: "There'd be hardly anyone on earth."

Q: How do you make a marriage work?"

A: "I would take out my palm pilot and arrange a nice wedding . . ."

I thought back to the simplicity of when I was come and the men will come running in with their axes and...

The ticking of the clock became more prevalent than the dorky music that was playing, but somehow, as I was being turned in these ridiculous circles, watching the big hand, I can remember the bluest eyes I had ever seen.

I married my high school sweetheart, and at our wedding, we hopped up on the stage and sang "Satisfaction" with the band (talk about your romantic music). That was almost 30 years ago. We recently got to relive one of the most romantic musical experiences of our lives, as we got "first row" at The Rolling Stones concert. I felt like I was sixteen again and on the Ed Sullivan Show. I was so adrenalized that I could have scaled the stage in a single bound.

When the security guard turned away, I threw my old brown leather glove up on the stage. With his open shirt, in one slow motion move, Keith Richards (the epitome of rock and roll to me for my entire life) bent down on one knee and picked up my glove and smiled at me. He stuck the glove in the top of his pants and strummed "Jumpin' Jack Flash" on his guitar. (Whoa, talk about your jumping' jack hot flashes. I had a few that age, writing "Be Mine" and "You're my Sweetheart" at the kitchen table for what seemed like hours. "Only 33 more to go," Mom would say. I got writer's wrist and block in the same day.

I guess us baby boomers were more immature. I remember my first Valentine's Day Dance. I was 13-years-old and my brother was sent to fetch me, so I could get ready. I was where I wanted to be, at the field, playing baseball, and covered from head to toe in glorious dirt. When I got home, my sister gave me a look and said, "I think it would be a good idea if you able to do even better.

Now, with computer programs able to analyze whatever is set before them, billions of moves from old games have been entered into computer data bases, as have the millions of moves and combinations from the thousand or so games played at this level every week. By Monday morning, one can have a computer analyze every top-level move since the invention of the game until the prior Friday. The best response is just a click of the mouse away.

From that perspective, grandmaster chess players are arguably becoming slaves to computers, bringing them data, carrying the computers with them to games as "advisors," pressing the buttons and then trusting whatever it is that comes back to them. In some way, this process is like remembering important telephone numbers. Not long ago, you memorized them. Now you enter them into a speed dial. To call your office, you might press the number 7. You might not even remember your office number anymore. But then, you don't have to.

On the other hand, chess masters might be considered to be merely partnering with their computers. At a recent match against a computer, the Indian champion Viswanathan Anand did his own analysis of a situation, at which point his opponent, Deep Fritz — who has, on occasion, beaten Deep Junior — spent ten minutes analyzing the situation. Then Fritz signaled that Anand had come upon a sequence that had never been used before and resigned. A crowd, watching this game, cheered.

As for the future, there seems to be only one game that is beyond the reach of computers at this time, and that is the game of "Go" played in China with black and white rocks. Experts say that each move in the game of "Go" has about a hundred times the number of possibilities as chess. No human has ever deferred to a computer about a game of "Go." Yet. •

I'm so happy I have this all on tape, because no one would believe this — my glove in Keith's pants.) And everyone thinks that Michael Jackson has the only "famous glove." Ha!

I hope the kids today set as high standards for themselves as I did when I was young. I chose my mate because he was an animal lover.

Little did I know that the bed was going to be so crowded. We sleep with two golden retrievers — one with an extremely pronounced underbite that sleeps with her eyes wide open, and the other that is OCD, and sleeps with three tennis balls in her mouth. It's only sheer luck that my husband has many other good qualities, too.

My husband and I may not talk all lovey-dovey to one another or show much affection in public, because at this age, we found a new way to talk to each other — it's called "bickering," and I guess we like it.

I may frown upon the public spectacle of the heart-shaped symbol impressed deep into the center of this month's calendar, but impressed deep into my own heart, I know there's nothing wrong with spreading a little love around. It certainly is what the world needs now. •

By Dan Rattiner

Blanche Wiesen Cook is an energetic woman with short hair, a handsome face and the no nonsense look of someone who knows exactly what she is about in life. She looks straight at you when she talks to you.

Blanche today lives in Springs with her life partner, playwright and psychotherapist, Clare Coss. She has an apartment in New York City and teaches a course called Violence and Social Change at John Jay College of Criminal Justice, CUNY, near Lincoln Center. She has been teaching this course more than thirty years. She is also a regular participant in the vigil for peace that takes place every Sunday afternoon at Long Wharf in Sag Harbor. She has also written several other books, including a multi-volume affair on Eleanor Roosevelt — the third volume is still on her word processor — that is considered the best book about this extraordinary woman ever written. Blanche Wiesen Cook is nothing if not consistent in her views about life.

Blanche was born and raised in the Bronx and then in Flushing, the daughter of a man whose family owned a successful company called North Atlantic Trading. He left that business to become a bus driver. He took up fishing. And he gave Blanche advice. He told her that Blanche could do anything. He also taught her how to punch a punching bag.

Blanche's mother was, according to Blanche, a maverick. She was in real life a legal secretary and stenographer, but in real, real life a woman who rode horses, loved cars, and espoused some very liberal views. This was in the 1950s.

The neighborhood where Blanche grew up, in the Bronx, was a rough one. But it was also a melting pot. Blanche walked to school with some of her friends every day, and then to Hebrew School, sometimes having to negotiate through local gangs. But with her friends, especially Eddie Jackson, an Irish boy, and Dominick Pagnia, an Italian, the troubled road to Hebrew School was reached safely.

"From this," Blanche told me, "I learned 'never go anywhere without your gang.'" Early on, Blanche decided she would become a phys ed major. But one day, after a triple flip she landed on a barbell that a boy had left at the end of the mat. She broke muscles and ligaments. Being a gym teacher would not be for her.

Instead, Blanche got involved in school politics. She debated in high school; and at Hunter College ran for President of the Student Council and won. She then became Student Affairs Vice President for the National Student Association and traveled to their conferences.

Who's Here

Blanche Wiesen Cook Author and Activist

On one occasion, she arranged for the novelist Ayn Rand, who wrote The Fountainhead and Atlas Shrugged, to speak at Hunter. Rand had a militant view of human achievement and individualism. But at a subsequent meeting, she said "if you don't agree with me, get out."

"The terrorists create terror. But they cannot shred our constitution, and cannot destroy our traditions."

Blanche got out.

"Libertarians weren't supposed to be dictators," Blanche told me.

A pivotal event occurred for Blanche Wiesen Cook in 1961 when she went to Madison, Wisconsin for the National Student Association annual convention. The fight against segregation was on the agenda. A student at that meeting proposed the most modest resolution: "We the students of America oppose segregation."

"The NSA refused to pass this," Blanche said.

Thus began a new student association, called Students for a Democratic Society, the SDS, which Blanche was part of. Several years later, this organization was instrumental in the successful protests against continuing the Vietnam War.

In 1962 Blanche went to Johns Hopkins University to study International Relations and Military History. But then the U. S. bombed the Plain of Jars in Laos and escalated the war in Vietnam. With Charles A. Barker, her Hopkins mentor, she worked to create a new group "The Conference on Peace Research in History," (CPRH). Renamed The Peace History Society, today, forty years later, it has members throughout the world.

"This group does peace research," Blanche told me. "Conflict resolution, wars that didn't happen. We published The Garland Library on War and Peace, 360 volumes from Dante in the 13th century to the full run of Gandhi's Harijan magazine and ten new anthologies."

Blanche finished her graduate studies with a dissertation on Woodrow Wilson and the Anti-Militarists, and got a job at Stern College in New York, the women's college of Yeshiva University. In 1967, she was hired by John Jay where she is a University Distinguished Professor today.

"I became good friends with Sandi Cooper (co-editor of the Garland series) and John Cammett who had just become Dean of Faculty at John Jay College. They also had a house in Southampton. Still do."

By 1972, Blanche Wiesen Cook had become widely known for her work for peace, the women's movement and civil rights. She was invited to be one of the ten women who alternated writing a column called "One Woman's Voice," which was syndicated to 300 newspapers around the country. Another of the ten women was Clare Booth Luce.

During this time, Blanche became a consultant to The World Law Fund's World Order Models Project (WOMP) that pioneered a sustainable peace and Development movement.

"We were thinking creatively about what the world would look like if it didn't blow up," Blanche said. "This was in the middle of the Vietnam War, 1968-9."

As part of the WOMP series Blanche wrote a book called Violence and Social Change. She plans to rework this book and continues to update it annually. It covers Manifest Destiny from The Mayflower to the Moon, the genocide of Native peoples. There is a chapter called From Slavery to Imprisonment.

"I have problems with aggression, the violation of law and covert actions that result in disasters," she said. "I am in favor of the rule of law, competition and self defense."

Blanche considers one of the defining errors of the twentieth century to be the 1953 U.S. engineered overthrow of Iran's democratically elected president Mohammed Mossadegh who nationalized his country's oil. In his place, the Americans installed the Shah of Iran and created ARAMCO. The Shah was later overthrown by the Muslim cleric Ayatollah Kohmeini during the late 1980s. He called America "the Great Satan." From that time to this, oil and fundamentalisms have become the twin towers of our on-going agonies.

In 1972 Blanche wrote a column syndicated out of the Los Angeles Times arguing that all good conservatives should vote for George McGovern. He was, she wrote, the real heir to Eisenhower's policies, especially his warning about the military-industrial-complex. Because of that column, she was called by Sam Vaughn, the President of Doubleday. He and Blanche had lunch. She would write a book about Eisenhower. But there were problems.

"I couldn't get any information out of the Eisenhower library," Blanche said. "All this material was in Abeline, Kansas, in the library of his birthplace. But it was all classified, closed, secret. And I thought 'never go anywhere without your gang.'"

Along with Bill Preston, Gerald Markowitz, Mike Perlin, and many other activists and attorneys, they created The Fund for Open Information and Accountability (FOIA Inc) to support and fight for the Freedom of Information Act and the Sunshine Law — which Congresswoman Bella Abzug introduced.

"We went to court," Blanche said. "I was co-chair of the committee. There were several successful cases, notably The American Friends Service Committee versus Webster (then head of the F.B.I.). Doors and files opened up. We prevented the F.B.I. from destroying the case records and the files were made available: Martin Luther King's papers; the COINTELPRO operations; civil rights papers; even Eleanor Roosevelt's extraordinary 5000 page file." In addition, for her book The Declassified Eisenhower: A Divided Legacy of Peace And Political Warfare, she got the Guatemala File declassified by the State Department.

"The Declassified Eisenhower published by Doubleday got mixed reviews. John Roche, attacked in the book, reviewed it in The New York Times 'Pity the poor trees killed for this book.' But Alden Whitman, a great journalist, and unknown to me a neighbor in Southampton, called and said, 'Do you want to read my rave review in the Los Angeles Times?' It was also published that Sunday, and we became great friends."

Blanche first rented in Southampton while still married to Sam Cook a historian and librarian. She'd come out to Water Mill to visit her friends Sandi Cooper and John Cammett from John Jay, and also Trumbell Higgins, a military historian at John Jay. One day Trumbell's wife, Barbara Guest, an esteemed poet, found a cottage on a horse farm in Southampton and called Blanche and Clare. "I have found a perfect rental."

"I lived with Clare there for seventeen years," Blanche said. "I love this area: the ocean and the fields. I go horseback riding. I play tennis. Swim. Bicycle. I do Pilates and lift weights. It's almost like being a Phys. Ed. Major."

Blanche moved to The Springs where she and Clare live today in the woods on a cul de sac. There she writes except when war and disaster interrupt her concentration. It was here she wrote Volumes One and Two of Eleanor Roosevelt, the biography of one of the most dedicated women of the twentieth century, a champion of the poor and an advocate for the United Nations and human rights. Eleanor was the first lady of this country from 1932 to 1945, and her views, which were surely radical for the times, had to be tempered by her position as the wife of FDR. After his death, she continued the on-going struggle for civil rights, human rights, justice and dignity for all. She fought cheerfully and relentlessly, through to her death in 1962.

Volume One of Eleanor Roosevelt was published in 1992 and became a best seller. Volume Two of Eleanor Roosevelt was published in 1999 with similar success. Blanche is currently working on Volume Three.

Here are Blanche Wiesen Cook's views on our current troubles with Saddam Hussein, and this dangerously militarized moment.

"The terrorists create terror. But they cannot shred our constitution, and cannot destroy our traditions. Only we can do that. Are we to be at war all the time everywhere and forever, nukes included? Bush has hijacked 9-11 to create a new world order. Ashcroft has created a climate of fear intended to dampen dissent. But Americans are demanding something else. A preemptive peace movement confronts the call for a preemptive war. Americans are demanding justice and negotiation, not carnage. The people of the world oppose global violence and nuclear mayhem. As Martin Luther King Jr. said: 'once the choice was between violence and non-violence; now the choice is between non-violence or annihilation.' We need to find creative strategies for this wicked moment."

Needless to say, Blanche Wiesen Cook will be at First Avenue and 49th Street this Saturday morning for the Peace Vigil against War with Iraq.

Valentines Day: Damage Control for Men

We celebrate Valentine's Day because it was one of the Saint's Days observed by the Catholic Church. St. Valentine's Day is named for Valentinus, a priest in the 3rd century who performed secret marriages when the Roman Emperor Claudius II outlawed all new marriages because he thought single soldiers performed better in the army. St. Valentine was imprisoned and executed in 270 AD. It is believed he sent the jailer's daughter a note saying, "From your Valentine," hence the popular phrase. In 496 A.D., February 14, was declared a feast day for St. Valentine by Pope Gelasius. Although it was removed from the Church's calendar in 1969, it has continued as a holiday for everyone thanks to Brachs, See's and Hallmark.

I wonder if anyone besides me has noticed that the official and most costly day of romance in this country is named for a celibate priest. Maybe it's just their way at getting back at men who can date.

Now Valentine's Day is a litmus test men must pass to get some lass. It is vital to America men, because if you screwed up at Christmas, this is your chance to fix it. The gifts received or not received are read by my sex like rune stones cast before a seer transmitting a clear message to us on the status of the relationship... and you thought it was just cards and candy.

If the relationship is very new, between 3-5 dates old, a man can get his new girl a cute card and medium size candy heart. If the relationship is between 5 to 10 dates old, an expensive card and large candy heart with ruffles is the absolute minimum you can get away with, a small piece of jewelry will go a long way at this intersection of your love. Rune equivalent meaning to the female: I like you and things are going well. With jewelry: I definitely want to continue the relationship. Can we have sex now?

If you're six months to a year in a relationship, you need to get the expensive card with the big candy heart and a really nice piece of jewelry. She may tell you not to buy her any chocolate, she's worried about her weight. Trust me, she is lying through her teeth. Experienced men will tell you that you must hold the chocolate heart across your chest like a knight's shield. This is your shield against Her wrath! Like darts sinking into a dartboard, any barbs of her caustic wit will sink into the center of a caramel chewy chocolate cluster. Rune equivalent meaning to the female: I'm sorry for anything stupid I've done so far. I really, really like you. Can we have sex now?

For men who are one to two years into the relationship, you must remember, lingerie is a gift for you and we know it! Your minimum acceptable gift is dinner out, or dinner in (YOU fetch it) complete with bubble bath and chick flicks. You still have to get the candy heart and schmaltzy card or roses. Rune equivalent meaning to the female: Whatever you say is right. I love you even if I don't say it. Can we have sex now? And how about kinky sex?

Past two years in your relationship? You're probably married or might as well be. This is a critical passage. A man's mind begins to warp in strange ways women do not understand. Five years into my marriage my ex made a Valentine's dinner of barbecued salmon and later, I received a $500 custom made fiberglass fly fishing rod with a fighting butt handle specifically designed for salmon fishing. I don't know why since he was the one who fly fished and was going to Alaska for a week. But, it had a large red bow on it and a card with my name. The card said I was the "catch of a lifetime." I thought that tied in nicely with the overall fishing theme that evening. Still, I was suspicious...

A dear friend of mine, after about eight years of marriage, received a Valentine's Day gift of a riding lawn mower with an umbrella, drink carrier and radio/CD player. Still another got a pool table. I think it's very clear from these few examples, and there are many more out there, that as a relationship gets older, a man's concept of what constitutes a romantic gift gets a little hazy. Rune equivalent meaning to the female: You know I love you so stop looking for artificial ways to make me say it. I'm only willing to buy you chocolate hearts smaller than your ass. Draw your own delusions. You don't want the gift? Fine, I'll put it in the garage. Can we have sex tonight?

Together 20 years or more and still like her company? You've been through a lot together by now. You know you go through periods when you're tired of each other, but the love comes back. Definitely get jewelry or something you KNOW she collects, plus the chocolate heart and card and flowers. Rune equivalent meaning to the female: You're still the one... Can we have sex tonight?

North Fork Best Of The Best Winners

A-Appetizers, B-Brunch, C-Chicken Dish, E-Dessert, F-Duck Dish, G-Family Restaurant, M-New Chef, N-New Restaurant, R-Salad, S-Seafood Restaurant, U-Take-Out, V-Wine List, W-Wraps, X-Steaks

Blackwell's. In an stately new building at the base of Great Rock Golf Course, this superior steak house caters equally to power lunchers as well as sophisticated foodies. The elegant and long polished wood bar adds a layer of refinement to an already charming dining room. The steaks are as good as you'd expect - prime, dry-aged, specially selected meat abundant in juiciness and flavor. Carnivores will also thrill to the braised bacon and St. Louis ribs. Very smartly prepared seafood entrees range from the delicious quick fried oysters to the sublime grand seafood platter. Entrees $17-$32 141 Fairway Drive, Wading River. 929-1800. (Bradbrook, 9/6/02) [X]

Cooperage Inn. Chefs Liam and Hegeman carry the banner of North Fork cuisine. Freshness of local ingredients evident in every bite, produce comes from neighboring farmsteads. Inspired appetizers, topped by pan-seared fresh mozzarella over spinach with artichoke hearts and plum tomatoes. Homemade dressings enliven fresh salads, notably the house salad of greens, fruits, raisins and nuts. Superb steaks and pastas. Rigatoni ala vodka with pancetta, basil and sage, particularly noteworthy. Cornmeal encrusted Atlantic salmon attains a very high level. Excellent values include grilled double pork chops atop wild mushroom herb stuffing. Owner Jonathan Perkins' stylish country restaurant is a North Fork gem. Entrees $14-$30. Sound Ave. Baiting Hollow. 727-8994. (Simm, 6/29/01). [B]

Do Little's. Very welcoming and unpretentious. An excellent menu for diners interested in fresh, smartly prepared dishes that are not calorically trumped up. Thai mussels in ginger/lemongrass broth hit the mark. Excellent pasta dishes, headlined by justifiably famous Seafood Pasta in white wine sauce, filled with mussels, clams and shrimp over linguine with fresh tomatoes and spinach. Stuffed ravioli with sundried tomatoes and mozzarella is beautifully done. Sensibly priced wine list, with a knowing nod to local vintages.

Entrees, $12.95-$19.95. Rt. 25, Mattituck Plaza, Mattituck. 298-4000. (Bradbrook, 7/28/01). [G]

Fauna. A hip and elegant culinary gem. Co-owner and consulting chef Mark Mittelman's menu astutely incorporates Asian influences into superbly conceived New American dishes. Tuna sashimi shines as an appetizer, as does duck confit atop sautéed spinach with walnuts and dried cranberries. Try and find room for the butternut squash pot stickers. The all-star cast of entrees includes Southeast Asian steak salad, pan-roasted bourbon chicken and a Napoleon of roasted vegetables. Desserts rotate daily. Extensive wine list with sixteen local vineyards. Entrees $20-$26. Route 25, Aquebogue. 722-5813. (Trueman-Honey, 6/7/02). [A,F]

La Plage. Obscure geography, sensational cuisine. This sums up owner/chef Wayne Wadington's destination restaurant on Long Island Sound, north of the tiny village of Wading River. No expense spared in the acquisition of top ingredients. Complex recipes spell highly creative fusion cuisine: New American in heart, French in spirit. Many highlights include: Chilled lobster soup garnished with roe; salad of tart apples with bleu cheese, walnuts and mache; rare yellowfin tuna with homemade potato chips; caramelized jumbo sea scallops with snow crab fritter. Desserts are imaginative and exceptionally well executed. Entrees $17-$28. 744-9200. (Bradbrook, 8/4/00). [R,V]

Pagano's. Italian cooking of a high order in a casual atmosphere, with servings large enough to include take-out. Imported Italian pasta and top-quality cheeses ensure that familiar dishes achieve memorability. Savory sauces are just unrecognizable enough to tantalize. Joe Pagano's restaurant is a North Fork standard-bearer, but Chef Frank Huber is known to experiment, with excellent results. His blackened chicken vino pairs Italian and Cajun flavors. Save room for desserts like Italian cheesecake and crème brûlée. Entrees $12.95-$18.95. Feather Hill Shopping Center, Southold. 765-6109. (Trueman-Honey, 4/26/02). [C]

Red Door. Red Alert! Stephan Mazzella, formerly of Lespinasse, has opened a fine new restaurant in Mattituck. His menu is quite versatile and his consistently tasty dishes excite the palate. Typically adventurous and successful is the pan-seared monkfish with a yellow tomato sauce and black olive purée topped by crispy fried leeks. Mazzella's treatment of fish epitomizes Greek and Italian-style preparation at its best. The appetizer of heirloom tomatoes with bocconcini mozzarella and fresh basil and balsamic vinegar is a tomato dish for the ages. Innovative desserts, too. Entrees - $16-$28. 13560 Main Rd., Mattituck. 298-4800. (Bradbrook, 6/14/02). [E,N]

Ross' Rotisserie and Smokehouse. A casual, homey eat-in or take-out spot opened by John Ross, former chef/owner of Ross' North Fork Restaurant. Great rotisserie and crispy fried chicken; marinated, honey-glazed duck legs; hickory-smoked spareribs; homemade soups and chowders; many cooked-from-scratch side dishes. Every Friday fish fry is an excellent value. A special 6-pound LI duck, cooked crisp, boned and quartered, accompanied by duck sauce and a garnish of apricots and cranberries ($19.99) is available by reservation the day before. Open 7 days 12-8. Route 48, Southold. 765-9655. (Simm, 10/5/01). [U]

The Seafood Barge. The North Fork restaurant for fish lovers. Owner/manager team of Dick Ehrlich and Betsey Flinn are as fanatical about results as Steinbrenner/Torre. Newly imported executive chef Michael Meehan updates the menu's standards and introduces several of his own specialties. Vichyssoise spiked with crab meat and basil oil was a rousing success. Marinated baby octopus with baby spinach was succulent and tender. As for the fish, the sushi appetizer continues to be stellar. The pan-seared striped bass with a red pepper broth is a revelation. Desserts are sensational. Excellent wine list, particularly local vintages. Entrees $24-$32. Port of Egypt Marina, Rt. 25, Southold. 765-3010. (Bradbrook, 7/26/02). [M,S]

Sultan's Kitchen. At last, a good, authentic Eastern Mediterranean for the region. The emphasis is on Turkish cooking, one of the world's healthiest cuisines. The spacious dining room is non-descript, as this is a former pancake emporium; the subtleties are all in the flavoring of the food. Soups such as red lentil and tripe are spiced just right. The varied appetizers favor vegetarians while the main courses concentrate on lamb and chicken, often with delectable results. Turkish baklava and kadayif are exceptional finishing touches. Entrees $6.50-$15.95. 1077 Old Country Road, Riverhead. 369-9766. (Bradbrook, 8/9/02.)

Shop 'Til You Drop...With Maria Tennariello

Oh no! More snow! I can't believe it! The shops are doing all kinds of snow day sales to boost their spirits as well as their revenue.

Think sexy for Valentine's Day. Stop in at Complements on Main Streets, Southampton and Bridgehampton for some alluring lingerie. They have it all here. Bet you don't walk out empty handed...

Eric's Shoes of Southampton on Main Street is closing their location and as we all know, everything absolutely must go out the door. There are shoes for everyone in the family including Little Eric Shoes for kids that were brought into the Southampton location from their Manhattan store. Boots are priced less than $95, shoes from $25 to $65. Open everyday from 10:30 to 6 p.m. Now that's a sale!

I came across Carol and Bill Duffy of East End Awnings while I was in my shopping mode last week and they told me they are starting to fill orders on their Sunesta awnings. Believe it or not, it is really a good idea to think summer right now for more reasons than one. Before the weather turns hot all of a sudden, yours can be installed and working and ready to go. They are strong, water-repellent, retract easily either manually or with the push of a button with an optional motor. The installation is free and there are colors galore to choose from. I still enjoy my purple and white-striped awning and it still looks brandy new. Give them a call at 631-287-6080 or toll free at 1-888-AWNING-8 for a free estimate.

At Kreiss Collection on Montauk Highway in Southampton look for some fabulous February markdowns.

Nearby at Pier One there is a nifty 20% off bedroom and entertainment center sale. Now is the time to redo...

Gemayel at the Bridgehampton Commons has their Valentine Day gift certificates all geared up for that special person on February 14. Gemayel offers, hair styling, hair highlighting, facials, French waxing and much more, all state-of-the-art. Give a call for information 725-8500.

In East Hampton, The Down Factory Store at The Elegant John at the Red Horse Plaza is having an "Inventory Sale" and guarantees the lowest down prices in the country including catalogs, chains and discounters. Check out the various down fill power, weights and quality. If you are really into the down comforters this is the place to get exactly what you want.

Get rid of those winter blues with a winter "Blues" special at Naturopathica Holistic Health Spa in East Hampton. There is a cool 10% off facials and massages for the month of March on Mondays and Thursdays.

Guess What? The Nines on Newtown Lane, East Hampton cannot tell a lie. They are having a Washington's Birthday Blowout Fall/Winter Sale that Washington would have crossed the Peconic for. Women's and men's clothing originally priced up to $750, now on sale for $9.99 – $179. And that's no lie!

Sylvester & Co. on Main Street in Sag Harbor has lots of fancy and fanciful sweets for your Valentine just waiting for you to pick one up.

Nearby at Candy & Flowers on Main Street in Sag Harbor you will find so many romantic Valentine's Day gifts. On the Valentine menu are: one dozen red roses wrapped with love; one dozen red roses arranged in a beautiful glass vase; romantic bunches of tulips wrapped or arranged or just create your own romantic bouquet. There is 10% off any flower bouquet or arrangement or any candy in the shop...Give a call at 725-6789.

I especially love the funky boutique Pura Vida located on Main Street in Sag Harbor, next to the Cigar Bar in Sag Harbor...And now they are having a huge sale called "Business Sucks Sale" with 40% to 60% off regular prices. The sale applies to really great stuff like chocolate leather pants from DDC Lab, jeans which include Joes Jeans, ABS, and Red Engine, just to name a few. They also have awesome sneakers by NM70 and the only place you can get these is at Pura Vida at 50% off. Now is the time to stock up and save lots of $$$! Get going the early bird always catches the worm...

Let's not forget Montauk...At Gurney's Inn & Spa call to make reservations for your special Valentine's dinner with the one you love. This is the day Gurney's renews vows for everyone in love, married or not! John and I go every year for our annual Valentine's Day dinner and enjoy the evening's entertainment. A special anniversary greeting to Ingrid and Sunshine on their February 14 wedding anniversary from all of us at Dan's Papers.

Wishing everyone a very sweet and healthy Valentine's Day 2003.

Until next week...Ciao and Happy Valentine's Day Shopping!

If you know of any sales and would like to share them with me, or have any questions regarding the shops or sales, please email me at shoptil@danspapers.com or fax: 631-537-3330.

Confessions of a Toxic Bachelor

Appearing at Bookhampton this weekend is the guy that every woman should avoid. Not specifically Rick Marin, the author of Cad: Confessions of a Toxic Bachelor, but more generally the type of guy he used to be. He is, of late, a reformed toxic bachelor, though his future condition is, as of this writing, unknown. But in his heyday he was the guy your mother warned you about – but the guy you still had to date.

Granted he is not of the tattooed, leather jacket and motorcycle ilk, he is more the guy next door. In his dating-days memoir (he's currently engaged) he chronicles the ever-so typical behavior of most men. It is "Sex and the City" for men – like it's always been. But he does offer an insight or two into the male mind and granted, they're not terribly deep thoughts, but we are talking about men here.

Marin appears at Bookhampton in East Hampton at 5:30 on Saturday, February 15.

Away At School... By David Lion Rattiner

Being a Finance Major: Part 2

Here is what you have to imagine while you are reading this column. You are sitting in a medium sized classroom at Northeastern University listening to a one hundred minute long lecture about finance. The professor is a no-nonsense finance jock who truly has a passion for teaching. He is very serious and tough and, in effect, has the students' full attention the whole time. His name is Professor Swasey. You pay attention out of fear of being failed by him.

Okay, so you are sitting in your seat taking feverish notes. Your palms are sweating; there is ink on your finger tips from writing so much as Professor Swasey is discussing Fleet Boston's balance sheet. You are listening to everything the professor is saying. He suddenly begins to explain that the numbers on this balance sheet have been manipulated a fair amount in order to look better to the stockholders. The professor then says, "Can anyone in the classroom figure out how the accountants for Fleet dressed up this balance sheet to make it more attractive to the stock holders?"

Your mind starts to go crazy. You know the answer to this question. You can figure this out. You start to examine the different numbers from each year. Let's see here, in 2001 federal funds sold and securities purchased under agreements to resell seem to be much higher than 2000. Did they do this to make their assets look bigger so that total assets could get closer to total assets in 2000? Ugh, no this can't be it; you are too embarrassed anyway to raise your hand. You don't even know what you just thought. "How on earth could they possibly have dressed this thing up?" you think to yourself.

Suddenly you see a weird, tall, skinny kid, over to the right of you raise his hand. How did he get the answer? Professor Swasey starts to speak; man, he can be really intimidating. "Yes. Mr. Rattiner, what do you think?"

"I think that Fleet got their balance sheet a nice pair of shoes along with a nice black dress. I think they probably bought it a matching hat along with some black gloves."

Maybe two people in the classroom laughed under their breath. You crack a smile and pat yourself on the back for being able to hold back the laughter. You can't believe that this kid just said that to Professor Swasey. What is this guy crazy? He is committing academic suicide. You do your best not to laugh at the ridiculous comment. After all, this is business school. You are here not to laugh but to learn. There is no time for jokes.

Still you can't help but give out a little giggle at the joke. The class goes on. The professor speaks, "No Mr. Rattiner. I am sorry that is not correct."

"I was just kidding."

"Oh I see. Well you are not going to kid your way to an "A" Mr. Rattiner. Does anyone else have any other suggestions besides Mr. Rattiner that are relevant to the advancement of our knowledge of business?"

You sit in your seat trying not to make eye contact with the professor so he won't call on you. Nobody is raising their hand. The professor speaks, "Well, I think I just figured out a nice little homework assignment for all of you."

The class goes on.

You scribble down in your planner that you have a new homework assignment while still trying to listen to what Professor Swasey is saying. He seems to be talking about bonds now. This guy sure knows his stuff. It is impossible to keep up with what he is saying but you do your best.

He starts a Power Point presentation on the bond section in the Wall Street Journal. The professor then speaks, "Does anyone know what a convertible is?"

You feverishly go to your backpack and grab your textbook. This had to be a vocabulary word in the glossary in the back of the textbook. You get excited. If you can just find it before anyone else in the class you might be able to boost your class participation grade. Out of the corner of your eye, you see that weird, tall, skinny kid raise his hand once again. How does he know the answer already?

"Yes. Mr. Rattiner, do you have an answer for us?"

"It is a really nice car. I personally like the red ones."

Guy de Fraumeni's Hollywood in The Hamptons

The stuttering state of the nation with its skittery economy and sputtering, very short fuse policies has me rattling-upset writing about the explosive theme of, "the sins of the fathers being visited upon the sons." Ooo-fah!! My pen just tore into the paper! No, I'll steer clear of beating about the Bush. The closet I'll get to Washington, D.C., in the reviews of two current father-son relationship movies, is the arena of the Central Intelligence Agency, whose undercover operations are as unbelievably dangerous, as those on the surface. At least, the spy thriller, The Recruit, honestly chides itself (and the audience) not to believe anything or anyone. The film banks on your account book memory of spy novels and movie lore (cliches) as surprises upon surprises pop up. Popping up brings us to Al Pacino in another of his many "Pop Knows Best" roles, as father figure-mentor to a young wannabe. You remember, in Donnie Brasco, Scent of a Woman, Devil's Advocate and Any Given Sunday he went at it with loud, hoarse bellowing, quirky cajoling and speech mannerisms that has Method founder, Lee Strausberg, doing push-ups in his grave. As a recruiter for the Agency, Mr. Pacino gets his teeth into some new, raw meat, who's a cut above the rest and tough, but as hip-cool as a shank of calf just out of the freezer. That is, until Al throws him into the fire, a training "Farm" where future CIAers are tempered to take torture, plant bugs and misconceptions. Trust is a word of disbelief.

The recruit is done with attractive purpose by Colin Farrell. He projects plenty of brainy brawn through his cool and clashes with the bombarding Pacino style in fine improvisational contrast. He's being taught that nothing is what it seems, and one of the examples is another recruit, Bridget Moynahan. He gets a crush on her and, comes close to getting crushed by jolting tests of his endurance. Can he take the big one that is yet to come? I think you can take it and get it...maybe sooner than Colin. Anyway, enjoy Al's trip and a half. Hoo Hah!

The would-be father in Biker Boyz, a motorcycle drag-race story, is Laurence Fishburne, leader of an African-American biker club and top man in the racing circuits. The son in search of a father is Derek Luke, the smashing new star of Antwone Fisher. He's a daredevil on a chopper though his father, Fishburne's mechanic, was killed in an accident. Luke needs to compete with the big boys, so he forms his own club, the Biker Boyz. When Fishburne learns that he is Luke's real father, he wants the boy out of harm's way. However, Luke, a relatively small fry, has to prove he's not just the "Kid." He won't fail, he will be top dog, surpassing his father... no matter what. It's the "no matter what" that worries everyone, as the father-son competition heats up to war. (Ain't it the truth!) In mythic proportions, it could be for world domination. But here, the helmets are flashy, the hardware rockets along at only 150 miles an hour and the roar of the crowd is heard with the random music of Metallica, James Brown, Ja Rule...hip-hop, soul and mucho macho rocking smokey energy.

The two underground, subculture worlds of the CIA and black leather bikers breeds blustering covert action for action's sake. The games prove deadly, eventually. No matter how strong man is metal is stronger than mettle. The fathers learn that. The sons are invincible... for a while..

Guy-Jean de Fraumeni is the producer/writer/director of award-winning European and American feature films. He has been a judge at major Film and TV award competitions, including the Oscars, the Emmy's and various film festivals. He is assisted by Sarah Halsey.

ED KOCH Goes To THE MOVIES

I can recommend this movie, but I won't say that I loved it. I found it fascinating, and even though it is totally bizarre, it held my interest.

The film is based on the life and autobiography of Chuck Barris. I had never heard of this prominent television producer of successful shows in the 60s like "The Dating Game," and "The Gong Show," which I never watched. Those programs, shown in the film, were precursors of the "Survival" shows that are so hot today, which I have deliberately never watched. Life is too short to waste precious hours on dreck, or as the French say, merde.

The opening scene of the film shows a naked Chuck Barris (Sam Rockwell) in his apartment from whose rantings we conclude is mentally disturbed. He is visited by Penny (Drew Barrymore) who declares through a closed door that she still loves him, but he won't let her inside.

Chuck decides at that moment he will write a book about his life. He then proceeds to outline his adventures in television and in a shadow world where says he was recruited by Jim Byrd (George Clooney) of the CIA to be a hit man. He has adventures with consequent killings and sex with a lot of women. Two prominent women in his life were Penny, a hippie, and Patricia (Julia Roberts), a femme fatale. There are scenes reminiscent of the Bond movies where Barris resembles Agent 007. Barris has a scene reminiscent of Orson Wells as Harry Lime in The Third Man, which takes place in Vienna.

Barris's book was not sold as fiction, but as non-fiction: an autobiography. In my opinion, and I know nothing about him, his CIA involvement appears to be fantasy and pathology on a grand scale, but maybe it did happen. The segments about his successful television programs are certainly true. I recommend the movie with reservations. Many who have seen it didn't like it at all, but they certainly weren't bored.

Before Ed Koch was a film critic for Dan's Papers he was the mayor of New York.

ART COMMENTARY With Marion Wolberg Weiss

"Robert Richenburg at 85" At David Findlay Gallery

Confession time. When people complain that they can't understand abstract art (and there are still plenty around), it's good to know a little secret, one which gives this critic some comfort when work is complex: it's alright to miss the meaning. It's also alright to "read into" a particular piece, to take risks and come up with something that may not be right according to the artist's intention. Even so, it all depends on whether a critic's intuition is working that day.

Why? Because finding meaning is often a gut reaction where signification is the real purpose of criticism; it's not simply describing what is seen on the canvas. Description should be the means to an end, not the end itself.

It's curious and lucky that Robert Richenburg's work (now at New York's David Findlay Gallery) neatly fits into the "take a risk at meaning" category. Because the show is a "survey," it also reinforces the thematic consistency we find. While describing Mr. Richenburg's fluid diverse movement (sometimes horizontal, sometimes vertical as his falling "shard" forms show), let's go beyond this. In fact, the movement conveys a story/message.

It's not merely this movement of abstract shapes, however, that tells the story. Mr. Richenburg's figures are the real focus. They also travel in diverse and opposing directions, signifying perhaps the artist himself (while the shapes are events and other things impeding on life).

There are moments of stasis as well, conveying the contradictory dynamics of motion vs. immobility. But these instances seem temporary in larger canvases as the artist continues with lyrical upward sweeps.

The meaning? A positive, life-affirming philosophy of life where Mr. Richenburg struggles and wins against the elements. If this sounds somewhat simple, it's not meant to be. It's merely taking a risk at interpretation.

"Mr. Richenburg at 85" is on view at New York's David Findlay Gallery (41 E. 47 Street, 212-486-7660) until February 28.

"Bones and Stones"

HONORING THE ARTIST: Michelle Murphy

This week's cover seems a bit out-of-place considering our current setting: white snow and dreary skies. Yet the lush, romantic Georgia O'Keefe-like iris is just the lift we need, recalling an alternative to the rose for Valentine's Day and the promise of spring.

Even so, the iris still seems a bit "off." Not a perfect rendition of a perfect flower.

Which makes "perfect" sense anyway if you knew its artist, Michelle Murphy, who shies away from perfection at all costs – in both her life and art. About the iris' imperfection, she explains that "It had to be what it is; after all, God made it."

Ms. Murphy has a penchant for all things she sees as incomplete: people, herself, and her artwork (primarily houses) which forms her "signature" pieces. As she puts it, "I don't feel comfortable around people who are perfect; I am attracted to what's authentic. That's why my colors in my watercolors may be a little off. They may bleed, for example." (As an aside, she adds, "Raising daughters has made me aware of how perfection can be negative, why there are so many young women with eating disorders.")

Ms. Murphy's art bears other signs of authenticity: homes with character that make the viewer ponder their history or occupants, works that may reveal a subtle peeling of paint or a bent tree in the front yard. Such faults add mystery as well as a narrative thrust to Ms. Murphy's pieces (no wonder she says she likes Edward Hopper and movies like Good Will Hunting and Ordinary People so much). While the artist realizes she doesn't aim for perfection in her life or art, Ms. Murphy says what she wants, instead, is to "strive to reach people, to make a connection, to 'raise the bar,' to say through her work, 'Come with me; get on board.'"

This worldview has led Ms. Murphy to take on many projects, diverse activities that challenge her aesthetic senses while also reaching varied people. For example, she is currently writing an autobiographical screenplay besides producing a Princeton University series of film interviews directed by her husband, Robert Strada, about the nature of creativity. She and Mr. Strada are also renovating a Sag Harbor house, as they have renovated their Amagansett dwelling and one in Greenwich Village.

But Ms. Murphy's doesn't stop with professional pursuits alone.

She is also committed to education, devoting herself to the Admission Committee at her daughter Alex's school (the Ross School). Add to this Ms. Murphy's involvement with LTV and other non-profit organizations, and you have not only a very busy woman but one who, like her imperfect iris image, brings a promise of spring: humility amidst beauty, a new beginning.

—Marion Wolberg Weiss
Ms. Murphy's work can be currently seen in two exhibitions: at East Hampton's Arlene Bujese Gallery and Southampton's Hampton Road Gallery.

Silvia Lehrer's Cooking Column

Pizza is serious business, both for the pizza maker and the consumer. Pizza has to be at the top of the charts in the American food industry. Sure you could stop at your local pizza place for a slice or just send out for a whole pie, but honestly there's nothing to making your own.

There are two basic rules in pizza making. Make it simple and make it with fresh ingredients. Whenever the mood strikes I toss flour into a bowl, dissolve a packet of yeast in water to add to the flour with a bit of salt and olive oil, transfer to a food processor and let that wondrous machine run for sixty seconds. Bingo you have just kneaded dough to make a pizza. Roll the dough briefly then gently stretch with your hands. If it is springy and difficult to work let rest for 10 minutes or so.

The dough is the foundation for a variety of toppings. Simplicity itself is the classic Pizza Margherita with tomatoes, basil and olive oil. Sauté greens with olive oil and garlic or top with roasted eggplant and red pepper with olives, your own tomato sauce, or whatever you have lying around in then fridge.

To achieve a perfectly crisp but not dry crust bake the pizza at a high temperature on a baking stone. The high heat rises from the stone cooking the dough quickly thus prevent a buildup of moisture that could make the dough soggy. Of course if you use a stone you also need a pizza peel for transferring your pizza to and from the oven. Just before popping your pizza into the oven, toss some cornmeal on the paddle to help release the pizza onto the stone. I've also have success with a flat, round pizza pan.

BASIC PIZZA DOUGH IN THE FOOD PROCESSOR

Yield: dough for one round 10-12-inch pizza

1 package active dry yeast
Scant 1 cup lukewarm water (105-115 degrees)
2 1/4 cups all-purpose flour
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon olive oil

1. Dissolve yeast in a Pyrex cup measure and stir to mix. I like to stir with a chopstick. Let stand about five minutes to proof.

2. Put 2 cups flour in a large bowl and make a well in the center. Pour in the dissolved yeast, salt and oil. With a wooden spoon, slowly work the liquid into the flour, stirring until you have a solid mass.

3. Transfer the dough to the workbowl of a food processor and process for 1 minute or until a ball of dough is formed. Transfer to a lightly floured board and knead into a ball for just 30 seconds. Put into a lightly greased bowl and turn to coat. Cover with a clean towel or plastic wrap and let rest until doubled in size, about 1 hour.

4. When ready to bake punch dough down in the bowl and transfer to a lightly floured surface. Begin to roll the dough from the center out just a couple of times then stretch with hands into a round. Transfer to a wood paddle or pizza pan.

PIZZA MARGHERITA

Classically a Pizza Margherita is made with seasonal sliced tomatoes, seasonings, fresh basil leaves and a flavorful extra-virgin olive oil. It could also be prepared with your own homemade tomato sauce as featured below.

Serves 4 - 6

For a homemade sauce

1 tablespoon extra-virgin olive oil
2-3 cloves garlic, finely chopped
1 can (1 lb. 12 oz.) plum tomatoes, drained
1 tablespoon tomato paste
1 teaspoon coarse (kosher) salt and freshly ground pepper
1 teaspoon fresh or 1/2 teaspoon dried thyme leaves
8-10 fresh basil leaves
1/2 pound fresh mozzarella cheese, sliced
1/2 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese

1. Heat the oil in a saucepan. Add garlic and saute for 30-40 seconds, stirring. Put in tomatoes and tomato paste and season with salt, pepper and thyme. Stir to mix breaking the tomatoes up against the side of the pan. Simmer for 15-20 minutes, uncovered until some of the liquid evaporates. Can be prepared ahead and refrigerated in a suitable container.

2. To bake the pizza, preheat your oven to 450 degrees. When dough is stretched out to desired size spread the sauce over the dough leaving a 1/2-inch border. Arrange basil over the sauce and an even layer of mozzarella over the basil. Sprinkle with grated cheese and transfer on a paddle to a stone heating in the oven or to a pizza pan. Bake for 25-30 minutes until crust is golden and cheese is melted. Transfer to a wooden board and cut into wedges for serving.

PIZZA TOPPINGS - THREE WAYS -

Here are a few simple choices to top your homemade pizza dough.

Makes 4-6 servings

Simply Herbs

Drizzle extra-virgin olive oil over thinly stretched round and spread all around with a spatula. Sprinkle with coarse (kosher) salt or sea salt and freshly ground pepper and dried oregano. Chop fresh rosemary leaves coarsely and toss over the top.

Bake in a 450-degree oven for 15-20 minutes.

Pizza with Goat Cheese and Roasted Peppers

Place roasted peppers over the stretched out pizza round and crumble a package of goat cheese of your choice over the peppers. Shred some basil leaves over the cheese and drizzle with extra-virgin olive oil. Bake as above

Pizza alla Verdura

Trim and wash 2 pounds of greens, such as spinach, Swiss chard (leaves only) or broccoli rabe. Spin-dry in a salad spinner or in several layers of paper towels. They should be very dry. Coarsely shred the greens. Heat 4 tablespoons olive oil in a large skillet. Add the greens and 2 cloves finely chopped garlic. Stir occasionally. The greens will wilt down in 2-3 minutes. Season with salt, pepper and a bit of hot pepper flakes and cook another minute or so. Transfer with slotted spoon to the stretched out pizza round and bake as above.

Dining In The Hamptons

Call It Makin' Love

He got you great presents on Valentine's Day and you're sure that he loves you, so now with the holiday over it's time to show you love him just as much. It's as true as ever: the way to a man's heart is through his stomach, so cook him a steak and then finish the meal with this tantalizing soufflé.

DARK CHOCOLATE ORANGE SOUFFLE WITH WHITE CHOCOLATE CHUNK WHIPPED CREAM

Serves 2

For the soufflé:

- 1/4 cup whipping cream
- 4 ounces bittersweet (not unsweetened) or semi-sweet chocolate, coarsely chopped
- 2 egg yolks
- 1 tablespoon Cointreau or other orange liqueur
- 1 teaspoon grated orange peel
- Sugar
- 3 egg whites, room temperature
- Pinch of cream of tartar
- 2 tablespoons sugar
- Powdered sugar

For the whipped cream:

- 1 ounce imported white chocolate
- 1/2 cup chilled whipping cream
- 1 tablespoon sugar
- 1/2 teaspoon grated orange peel
- 1 tablespoon Cointreau or other orange liqueur

To make the soufflé:

Cook cream and chocolate in heavy small saucepan over low heat, stirring until chocolate melts and mixture is smooth. Remove from heat and beat in yolks 1 at a time. Mix in Cointreau and orange peel. Cook to tepid. (Can be prepared 2 hours ahead. Cover and let stand at room temperature. Stir over low heat until tepid before continuing.)

Preheat oven to 375°F. Butter one 4-cup or two 1 3/4-cup soufflé dishes; dust with sugar. Beat whites and cream of tartar in medium bowl until soft peaks form. Beat in 2 tablespoons sugar. Fold 1/4 of whites into chocolate. Gently fold in remaining whites. Spoon into prepared dishes. (Can be prepared 1 hour ahead. Cover and let stand in draft-free areas at room temperature.) Bake until soufflé rises but still moves in center when touched, about 20 minutes for individuals and 30 minutes for one large. Dust tops with powdered sugar. Serve immediately, passing whipped cream separately.

To make the whipped cream:

Cut chocolate into 1/4-inch dice. Combine cream, sugar and orange peel in medium bowl and beat until stiff peaks form. Mix in Cointreau. Fold in chocolate. (Can be prepared 4 hours ahead. Cover and refrigerate.)

In part two of our "Baby its cold outside" series, here's a roundup of some of the most delicious and soul-warming soups you can find on the chilly East End right now: at the Plaza Café, pumpkin-lobster bisque; at American Bistro, New England clam chowder; at Rowdy Hall, the French onion soup; at Tierra Mar, asparagus, leek and spinach bisque; at The Laundry, laundry chowder; at Della Femina, roasted kabocha squash soup.

If you haven't been to the Wild Goose in Cutchogue, the perfect time to visit would be Sunday, February 23 when they'll have their "Festival of the Loire." This four-course wine dinner features food and wine of the Loire Valley and includes dishes like soupe de poisson with crayfish and cruyere crouton. The second course is the très exotique "Salade Lorette": Tender greens, beet, celeriac, apple and lardons of wild boar bacon crowned with frogs legs. The wines of the Loire will accompany the meal: Sancerre, Valencay, Saumur de Champigny and Sparkling Touraine. Call Wild Goose at 734-4145 for reservations and info.

Don't miss Rowdy Hall's first ever beer dinner on Thursday, February 27. With Chef Ed Lightcap of Rowdy providing the food and brewmaster Phil Markowski of the Southampton Publick House in charge of the beer, it should be a rousing success.

Good news – red/bar reopened on February 12 after a winter hiatus. Spring can't be too far away.

Mark your calendars: Nick & Toni's will feature the food and wines of Long Island in a special dinner March 7. More details on this and other spring wine dinners there to come!

A couple more spring things: the first annual East End Food & Wine Awards will be held on April 6 at Tierra Mar in Westhampton Beach which will honor food and wine professionals out here: call 725-3899 for more info – promises to be a big deal...Frank Coe of Wild Goose up in Cutchogue will appear at the James Beard House in Manhattan on St. Patrick's Day – call (212) 675-4984 for rezzies... "Taste of the Nation" will be held at Pacific East on April 27 – it'll be a brunch format like last year; ticket info to follow.

Have you seen the new Café Off Main on Newtown Lane in East Hampton? The folks that operate, you guessed it, Café on Main in Amagansett have opened up where The Spot used to be. Should be a good place to duck in for a quick bite or a cup of coffee.

Seven Bar & Grill in Westhampton Beach is open year round for lunch and dinner. Some of the sample menu items courtesy of chef Markus Padavan include: 16 oz. New York strip steak, crisp oven roasted chicken, penne a la vodka, jumbo lump crab cakes and fresh ground sirloin burgers. Seven is also available for special events and parties.

Thursday night is a good night to head to Saracen on Georgica Pond in Wainscott. They offer free unlimited pasta, antipasti and pizza at the bar all night! They also offer a prix fixe menu Wednesday through Friday. Closed Monday and Tuesday.

The Bellport Chowder House is offering a 4-course prix fixe that includes choice of appetizer, salad, entree, coffee and dessert Sunday to Thursday for $21.95, and Friday and Saturday for $24.95. Call 286-2343.

Chinda's in Noyac, the authentic Thai house, is offering an early bird special nightly from 5:30 – 7:30 pm. The $25.95 special includes soup, spring roll, entrée and coffee or tea. They are open seven nights Sunday through Thursday 5:30 – 9 p.m. and Friday and Saturday 5:30 – 10 p.m.

Gather up all your munchkins and head to the Blue Parrot, they have a kiddie special on Thursday nights – kids eat free! And Sundays they put out an all-you-can-eat Mexican buffet for $12.95. For aspiring rock stars kamikaze karaoke is offered every Friday.

Mary Jane's Restaurant News

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Is there a dress code?

A: No. Mary Jane's is casual dining. We offer a comfortable and cozy dining experience. The hardwood floors and burning fireplaces give it that warm country inn feel. You can come in for a full four course dinner or just a sandwich or a pizza anytime. We also have a $23.95 three course dinner every night except Saturdays.

Q: Is it Italian food?

A: Yes and No. Mary Jane's has definite Italian influences. The menus offer Italian dishes like house-made mushroom ravioli, Angel Hair Pomodoro, lobster ravioli and Tuscan Lamb Chops. The warm garlic rolls served to the tables during lunch and dinner are definitely Italian. The menus are not strictly Italian influenced though. There is Pot Roast, Thai BBQ Chicken, Pan seared Crab cakes and a Macadamia nut crusted salmon. Between the lunch, dinner and lounge menus we can please all tastes and appetites. Special requests are accommodated as well.

Q: Is the Piano Bar going to return?

A: Yes. The piano bar will return in late March / early April. Not only can you sit at the piano and request songs, but singing along is encouraged. And be ready to sing Sweet Caroline!!

Sunday Brunch

Every Sunday 11am-2pm we serve a brunch buffet. Assorted fruits, muffins, bagels and danish. A create your own omelet station, smoked salmon, homemade desserts and a create your own pancake station. $16.95 for adults and $8.95 for kids. Includes coffee or juice. HEALTH & BEAUTY

Luxury Is Skin Deep

Is youth really wasted on the young? Youth is radiant, glowing and alive with inner light. But the years have a tendency to dim the luminosity. At precisely the moment when radiance of heart and soul are at their apex for women, the skin just doesn't measure up.

Who are you? Are you the woman who is turning up your own voltage in mid-life by changing your path in a radical and soul satisfying way? The one whose turned over a new leaf, and is turning-on the world around you by becoming who you were born to be?

That woman comes from all walks of life, all cultural and social backgrounds. She has a passion for inspired change and the courage to become a beacon that light the way for others to follow. She is the woman of radiance! A woman of the times.

The scientists of La Prairie anticipated this happening and introduced a new cellular technology so unique it has bottled luminosity. It's called Cellular Radiance Cream which utilizes a new application of the science of physics, one that enhances the reflective properties of skin itself, making it look luminous from the instant of application. Lines, wrinkles, age spots seem to diminish...tone and texture transform...the skin looks new again, firmer, radiant...as if the face has relearned the secret of youth.

The technology used to create Cellular Radiance Cream is an ingenious new application of the science of physics. It creates particles that do not simply diffuse light; they actually emit light, to enhance the look of the skins surface. La Prairie's de-aging experts have also formulated into this virtual age-diminisher, a complex of potent phytoestrogens - Wild Yam, Soy, Black Cohosh and Red Clover. Papaya Extracts for gentle exfoliation - plus a unique moisture complex and Niacinamide to help stimulate skin.

And all these support systems for change, have been significantly enhanced by La Prairie's own exclusive Cellular Complex, creating one of the most rare and extraordinary creams to ever debut on the international scene.

Cellular Radiance Cream is a dazzling new way to bring back the high power glow of youth. It's a wake-up call of illumined crystalline energy that can revitalize the look of skin with ingenious new light emitting technology, and potent phystoestrogens to dramatically support mid-life skin.

Cellular Radiance Cream has the power to banish the appearance of wrinkles, lines, age spots...redefine texture and tone...firm and plump skin to bring back the high voltage radiance that simulates the glow of dewy, young skin.

Who is Cellular Radiance Cream for? For the kind of woman who really hits her stride in mid-life and who wants to look as young and dynamic as she feels. Cellular Radiance Cream can help a woman's outer glow match her luminous inner spirit making you feel younger, prettier, dewier, refreshed and radiant and glowingly alive. It is a luxurious must-have that can be used day and evening. The price a luxurious $500, 50 ml. Hey, aren't you worth it? I am!

La Prairie's products are available at most fine department and cosmetic stores, including Saks Fifth Avenue on Main Street in Southampton.

About Face.....with Annette

Stress Management

We all experience stress on a daily basis, whether or not we are aware of it. Sometimes it can be a good stress, sometimes it is dangerous. Just tuning in to CNN and listening to the problems with Iraq, Laci Peterson's disappearance, and now Michael Jackson's parental abilities, is enough to raise our levels of cortisol. You can change the channel but some damage has already been done on a subliminal plane.

Stress is the wear and tear our bodies experience as we adjust to a continually changing environment. It has a physical and emotional effect on us and can create positive or negative feelings. As a positive influence, stress can help compel us to action, it can result in a new awareness and an exciting new perspective. As a negative influence, it can result in feelings of distrust, rejection, anger and depression, which in turn can lead to health problems such as headaches, upset stomach, rashes, insomnia, ulcers, high blood pressure, heart disease, and stroke. With the death of a loved one, the birth of a child, a job promotion, or a new relationship (or the end of one!) we experience stress as we readjust our lives. In adjusting to new and different circumstances, stress will help or hinder us depending on how we react to it.

So, positive stress adds anticipation and excitement to life, and we all thrive under a certain amount of stress. Deadlines, competitions, confrontations, and even our frustrations and sorrows add depth to our lives. The goal is not to eliminate it, that is almost impossible, but to try to manage it. Remember, insufficient stress can lead us to feel bored or dejected. Too much can leave us feeling "tied up in knots."

There is no single level of stress that is optimal for all people. This is not a "one size fits all." One person may revel at the prospect of a new job, or moving to a new state, and another may find themselves totally distressed. But it has been found that most illness is related to unrelieved stress. If you are experiencing stress symptoms, you have gone beyond your optimal stress level, you need to reduce it or improve your ability to manage it.

Identifying unrelieved stress and being aware of its effect on our lives is not sufficient for reducing its harmful effects. Just as there are many sources of stress, there are many possibilities for its management. All require work towards change, how do you go about that?

Become aware of your stresses and your emotional and physical reactions.

Notice your distress. Don't ignore it. Don't gloss over your problems. Try and determine what events distress you. What are you telling yourself about the meaning of these events? Determine how your body responds to the stress. Are you becoming nervous or physically upset and if so, how?

Recognize what you can change.

Can you change your stresses by avoiding or eliminating them completely? Can you reduce their intensity? That can be a tough one. Perhaps by trying to shorten your exposure to stress by physically leaving the premises may help.

Reduce the intensity of your emotional reactions to stress.

The stress reaction is triggered by your perception of danger – physical danger and/or emotional danger. Are you viewing your stresses in exaggerated terms and/or taking a difficult and turning into a disaster? Most women tend to do this, I am guilty! Are you expecting to please everyone? Are you a crowd pleaser? Are you overreacting and viewing things as absolutely critical and urgent? Do you feel you must always prevail in every situation? Work at adopting moderate views, try to see the stress as something you can cope with rather than something that overpowers you. Try to temper your excess emotions and put the situation in perspective. Don't labor on the negative aspects and the "what ifs."

Learn to moderate your physical reactions to stress.
Slow, deep breathing will bring your heart rate and respiration back to normal. Relaxation techniques can reduce muscle tension. Electronic biofeedback can help you gain voluntary control over such things as muscle tension, heart rate, and blood pressure. Medications when prescribed, can help in the short term in moderating your physical reactions. However, they alone are not the answer. Learning to moderate these reactions on your own is a preferable long-term solution.

Build your reserves.

Exercise for cardiovascular fitness three to four times a week (uh huh) like moderate prolonged rhythmic exercise is best, such as walking, swimming, cycling or jogging. Eat a well balanced meal at least twice a day. Avoid nicotine, excessive caffeine and other stimulants. Mix leisure with work and take breaks and get away when you can. Get enough sleep and try to maintain some sort of routine with that.

Maintain your emotional reserves.

Develop some mutually supportive friendships and relationships. If they are what causing the stress – run! Pursue realistic goals which are more meaningful to you, rather than goals others have for you that you do not share. And finally? Always be kind and gentle with yourself, be a friend. You know you can always count on yourself. If all else fails, call Maria of Shop til you Drop, she always manages to erase all the clouds in my sky when it is threatening to cave in! And speaking of stress, it is Josh who is responsible for all the entertaining if not bizarre graphics on my column, for all who inquired, not I!

The Answer For An East End Elevator

All-Island Elevator Co., an elevator and lift company, launched on January 27, 2003, announced Wally Teich, president and founder. The Hampton Bays-based firm markets residential and commercial elevators, wheelchair lifts, stairway lifts and dumbwaiters. The company also designs, installs and services elevators and lifts and is the first of its kind serving the East End of Long Island.

"All-Island Elevator Co. helps solve accessibility needs in homes and public buildings," says Teich. "Elevators and lifts are for people who want 'smart homes' with conveniences or to avoid stairs and in commercial locales to meet accessibility and code requirements."

All the elevators and lifts are designed, manufactured and installed to meet the ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) Barrier Free codes and ASME/ANSI A17.1 codes. ADA prohibits discrimination, and is intended to establish independence, equal rights and opportunities for persons with disabilities.

There is a growing demand for public places to become more accessible. Elevators and lifts are being used to overcome barriers imposed by stairs. Elevators installed in new and existing homes offer convenience and increased mobility. They require little space and add to the home's resale value. For "upside down" homes, dumbwaiters provide the convenience of moving groceries and laundry between levels. They are affordable and need little maintenance.

Teich was formerly the general manager and operations manager for a New Jersey company that is the largest installer of accessibility products in the U.S. He also is trained as an engineer.

Teich says that he is initially targeting the residential and commercial elevators to architects, general contractors, developers and real estate professionals and homeowners undergoing major renovations on the eastern end of Long Island, followed by a campaign to professionals in Suffolk County. Another direct mail campaign targeted to houses of worship, public meeting and banquet halls and office buildings, as well as rehabilitative organizations in Suffolk County, also is planned.

The products include residential free standing and in-shaft elevators, commercial LU/LA elevators, stairway lifts, vertical and incline wheelchair lifts and dumbwaiters.

An elevator in a residence eliminates the need to run up and down steps, allows bedrooms or the main living level with a kitchen to be located on the upper level, enabling access for everyone and serves as a dumbwaiter. An elevator adds value to a home, can be installed economically and customized for the home décor with natural wood, mirrors, inlay flooring, carpeting, and special lighting. An elevator can cost less than $25,000 excluding construction.

The LU/LA commercial elevator will make up to six stops and has a 1400 lb. capacity. ADA tax credits and deductions are available upon installation. The residential stairway lifts are for those who find going up and down stairs difficult. The company is offering an 18-month warranty on parts and labor for stairlifts, the best in the business, according to Teich. Wheelchair lifts can be installed for both indoor or outdoor, home or public use. Elevators and lifts are equipped with safe-

Police Blotter

Attention Kmart shoppers, you have the right to remain silent. Anything you say can and will be used against you in a court of law. Three different people from Sag Harbor were told such after trying to walk out of Kmart in Bridgehampton with goods they never bought. The first incident involved a woman a few weeks ago who tried to make off with some undisclosed Kmart products; she was picked up in the parking lot by store security. The second incident occurred last Tuesday when two men were seen unloading their unpurchased booty into a black Toyota. They were held again by security and questioned until police arrived. All three were processed and charged with petite larceny.

A cruel joke caused two East Hampton police officers to wade into the icy waters of Hook Pond in East Hampton last Sunday. A photographer was at the site taking some photographs when what looked like a human body appeared under the ice. The cops arrived and discovered a "stuffed dummy" under the ice. The Department of Public Works was called to remove the dummy.

The manager of Camp Blue Bay reported to police last week after discovering a green wagon missing from the Girl Scout camp. He told responding officers that the wagon, valued at about 30 boxes of Samoas, was removed from a locked shed sometime last week.

Southampton Town Police were patrolling Noyac Road last Sunday afternoon when they passed a truly smashing '87 Mercedes for sale. Upon closer investigation, the officers discovered that the smashing vehicle was actually smashed. They said all the windows appeared to have been smashed with a baseball bat.

In the spirit of St. Valentine, two brothers exercised their obvious brotherly love last Thursday in Southampton. Police were called to their house on Layton Avenue just in time to see one of the brothers, age 34, wielding a hammer as the other, age 46, fended him off with a metal cane. Both were arrested and charged with menacing in the third degree.

The owner of Sweetwater Deli in East Quogue was saved from a sour situation Monday night with the help of a neighboring resident and a stubborn lock on the rear door of the establishment. Police were called when the neighbor witnessed two men trying to pry open the back door. An officer pulled up to the deli just as the two would-be burglars decided to give up and leave the scene. Their escape was interrupted and the two were arrested. Both were charged with Attempted Burglary in the Third degree, a felony, possession of Burglar's Tools, a class A misdemeanor, and an additional charge of Criminal Possession of a Controlled Substance in the Seventh degree after police found a small quantity of Crack Cocaine in the car. The vehicle was impounded.

ROCK AND ROLL

Dear Dan:

It might be a good idea for the Town Fathers (don't you have any Mothers out there?) to investigate geotextiles (the ten-dollar term for the "plastic" sheets which annoyed you) a little further. A subscription to "ENR" civil engineering magazine might help them.

As people have demanded more aesthetically pleasing construction and less environmental damage (try looking in a mirror at this point), a few modifications in construction have made them happy. One is the use of rocks to disguise the boundaries of geotextiles lining ponds.

The problems of wood rotting or poisoning the environment (if chemically treated) will not go away. Rocks are very long lasting. So the edges of ponds lined with geotextiles now tend to feature small rims of local rocks. Because Long Island is the leavings of the glaciers, which covered New England, the Hamptons should be able to acquire a pleasing variety of rocks to rim the pond and make you and the other citizens happy.

A BIRD IN THE HAND...

Dear Dan,

After reading articles in Newsday, looking through the dictionary, drawing from my life's experiences and doing much soul searching, I have formulated a hypothesis regarding the US's possible involvement in war with Iraq. I used the President's last name and a 2/3/03 article by less Payne a Newsday columnist, to arrive at a title for my hypothesis.

The dictionary defines "a bush ranger" as a criminal who hides in the bush and leads a predatory life. Ironically, bush ranger is an Australian term. Australia is one of the few countries, which support the US going to war with Iraq.

Less Payne's Newsday article compares President Bush to the cold blooded, blood thirsty Texas lawmen known as Texas Rangers... thus the name and the title, bush ranger.

I wonder, had the Justice Department investigated George Bush's stock transaction as vigorously as Martha Stewarts' had, would he have been nominated for President or fined and imprisoned with the rest of the criminals?

After being selected president by the smallest margin in history, many people, especially Democrats considered George Bush to be one of the worst political predators ever. After all, he may have stolen the election right out from under Al Gore.

I feel the United States is headed towards war with Iraq, led by a genuine presidential bush ranger.

God help us all. I only hope history proves me wrong!

Richard Sawyer
Sag Harbor

Yahoo! —D.R.

AND NOW A WORD FROM THE G.O.P.

Dear Dan,

I read the article (editorial?) about Bush and war with mounting puzzlement. What is the author try to convey? How much does he really understand of the real world outside the Hamptons? And why has he not signed his name?

Let me comment on some points, fully understanding that the author is entitled to his opinions.

The author states "George W. seems to be our first president lacking in perspective and moral compass." What is the basis for this statement? Because the author does not agree with him Bush has no moral compass? I get uneasy when people start talking about a moral compass. The compass too often is adjusted to the political belief. And who are we comparing GW to? That paragon of morality Bill Clinton? That naïve well meaning bumbling Carter?

The author states, "There is no winning with this guy." Excuse me, but what does the author call the liberation of Afghanistan?

The author compares Iraq to dictatorships like Syria, Jordan, Egypt, etc. etc. Talking of lack of perspective.

Which one of those named has anywhere the record of reckless mass murder like Saddam? Tell that to the 150,000 plus Kurds Saddam killed with nerve gas. And the mass murders go on.

The author also states, "No wonder the Europeans hate us?" What Europeans? When was he last in Europe and can he read the local papers? If he could, like I can, he would find out that support for the US position is quite different from that reported by the New York Times which has an axe to grind. A small example, two of the current best selling books in France attack the mindless anti-American position of French left wing intellectuals.

The world owes the Israelis a vote of thanks for having obliterated Iraq's nuclear weapons more than a decade ago, for he surely would have used them. All Bush is trying to do is prevent Saddam from again getting weapons of mass destruction, which Saddam's record shows he would use, given half a chance, and the top targets would be Israel and New York City.

It is to bad the lessons of history are lost on some people. All you have to look at is Hitler and the West in 1937. It is "déjà vu" all over again.

VINNY'S CALLING THE SHOTS

Dear Dan,

I love your paper. Yet I would like to see South of the Highway column called by its correct name, "Hollywood Hamptons." Not that it's bad, it is that many of us are here to get away from that civilized and intellectual world of Hollywoodland. I only suggest two articles. I am sure Hollywood Hamptons is waited for with baited breath by many. Just have a second story called "Real People South of the Highway." I'm sure there are some.

Dans' Papers' has the highest weekly circulation in the Hamptons, with free Manhattan distribution. Our website receives up to 800,000 hits a month, making Dans' site the most visited of the East End publications. Our Classified section is second only to Newsday.

All ads in the Classified dept. are paid in full before scheduling or submission to the art dept. House designed ads are available to our clients for no charge. For refunds of the Service Directory, Mind, Body, and Spirit and other ads containing house created artwork, however, a design fee of $125 and an administration fee of 15% will be charged. Once Classified ads have been entered into the system and scheduled, we are not responsible for refunds or changes. Web ads usually appear Thursday by 6pm.

When people think of Venice, whether they have been there or not, certain images quickly spring to mind...San Marco Square, the canals, the Rialto...the list can go on and on.

Unfortunately, the Venetians' excellent cuisine and artful meal preparations are often overlooked, But they deserve more attention than they receive. Though Italian by geography and culture, there are some distinctions that make the meals of Venice slightly different from the country's other regional cuisines. Venetians rely less on tomatoes for their sauces and focus more on risotto, fish, polenta and dairy.

Make a house call.
